Misery Driving Germans in Arms Of Bolshevism

Dr. Hugenberg Most Powerful Figure Today In Germany Says Despair Is Driving Germans Towards Alliance With Bolshevism.

g. Dunbar Weyer, Berlin correspondent of the International News Service yesterday reported in a dispatch that there are rumblings in Germany which may portend a German drift towards alliance with bolshevism. Today Weyer sends an interview with Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, members of the Reichstag and Nationalist party leader, stating that there is a "mental drift toward an espousal of Bolshevism" because of the sheer despair of the German people.

The interview follows:
(By S. Dunbar Weyer.)
(Copyright, 1926, by International News Service.)

Berlin, Jan. 22.—"Once the many millions of German citizens living today in direct misery realize that, regardless of their plight, 2,600,000,000 gold marks must be pressed each year from the German economic body, the feeling will gain ground that every hope for betterment has been lost and only desperate action promises rescue. Thus, these millions will be driven into arms of Bolshevism."

This statement was made exclusively to the International News Service correspondent today by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, member of the Reichstag, a Nationalist party leader, owner of the Lokal Anzeiger and other Scherl publications, altogether one of the most powerful figures in post war Germany.

In granting this interview Dr. Hugenberg broke a tradition of many years, he having heretofore steadfastly refused to allow himself to be interviewed.

Drift Is Apparent.

"This mental drift through sheer despair toward an espousal of Bolshevism is already apparent," Dr. Hugenberg continued. "If present conditions continue it will penetrate deeply into nationalist circles as well as into the intelligentsia in as much as Bolshevism propaganda in all countries enlists Nationalist movements in service in the cause of Moscow."

Hugenberg's utterances are extremely significant because he more than any other individual or group shapes public opinion in Germany. Not only through his widely read newspapers and periodicals but personally through a gigantic nation wide apparatus centered in a news service "Telegraphen Union" Hugenberg vitally influences to an extraordinary degree the thoughts and feelings of a majority of the German people.

It was chiefly due to his press apparatus that Hindenburg's election was brought about. Recently he loomed as the stormy petrel of the nation because of the powerful propaganda he launched against the Dawes plan.

Crisis Very Grave.

"The crisis is far graver than the outside world realizes," Dr. Hugenberg said. "The misery of our utterly ruined middle class is indescribable. Forty-five million hungry, freezing, despair-ridden men, women and children—that is the price Germany paid for the much discussed wiping out of her internal debt."

"Our workers earn just barely enough to buy the food necessary to sustain them. They have no money for clothes and other necessities. The economic plight accounts for the nervous, irritable mood of our people."

"Tears of disappointments" continued Hugenberg, "have nourished and justified strong skepticism and distrust toward all utterances from abroad. Germany has a right to expect deeds at last instead of fine phrases. This is true particularly of the approaching disarmament conference. The fact that Germany is at the mercy of any arbitrary extortion by force intensifies our economic insecurity and thereby the economic crisis in which we find ourselves."

Court Affirms Rogers Judgment

The appellate division of the Supreme court in a decision entered January 15 has unanimously affirmed judgment in $6,575.50 in all things with costs of appeal in the action of Henry B. Rogers, plaintiff, respondent, against Ezekiel O. Rose, Vincent A. Gorman and Albert E. Rose, doing business under the name and style "Rose-Gorman-Rose," in this city.

On November 7, 1923, at about 5:30 p. m., Mr. Rogers who was on his way home from work, while crossing Broadway from the head of Elmendorf street to the head of Liberty street, was struck by an automobile being operated by an employee of the defendants firm. Mr. Rogers had his left ankle broken, two bones in his left leg above the ankle broken and his left foot crushed. He was so badly injured the heel of his left foot had to be removed, as was also the ankle bone and his knee cap, making him a cripple for life.

He brought action for damages and the case was tried in the Supreme court and judgment in $6,575.50 given him on June 2, 1925. From this an appeal was taken by defendant firm and the judgment has been unanimously affirmed by the appellate division as above stated. Virgil B. Van Wageningen was attorney for plaintiff, respondent and Judge John G. Van Etten, of counsel, argued the case before the appellate division; Frank W. Brooks was attorney and counsel for defendant-appellant, during all the proceedings.

Unique Decision By Appeals Court

State's Highest Tribunal Rules That a Wife Cannot Compel Support From Husband if She Refuses to Live With Him.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—A wife who refuses to live in ordinary marital relations with her husband cannot compel her husband to support her, the court of appeals held in a decision handed down today.

This was the first time the highest tribunal in the state had ever been asked to pass upon such a question. The decision was in the action brought by Frankie Mirizio against her husband, Cosmo Mirizio, of New York, to compel him to support her. The Mirizios were married by a civil ceremony and then made an agreement they would not consummate the marriage until after a religious ceremony had been performed. Subsequently, when the husband refused to take part in the religious ceremony, the wife brought an action to compel him to support her.

A majority of the judges of the court of appeals, in an opinion written by Chief Judge Hiscock, held that "the refusal by a wife to submit to ordinary marital relations with her husband was such a violation of the fundamental obligation of the marriage contract, that it prevented the wife from succeeding in a suit to compel support by her husband while such refusal continued."

Judges Crane and Lehman, in a dissenting opinion, took the view that the parties had the right to make an agreement for a religious ceremony in addition to the civil one, and that so long as the husband refused to go through a religious ceremony, the wife was not prevented, by her refusal to consummate the marriage, from enforcing her right of support by her husband.

The decision was regarded as one of the most unique ever handed down by the court.

NELSON BEEF COMPANY MAY CHANGE OWNERSHIP

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star of Thursday states that reports were current there that day that the Nelson Beef Company which operates a chain of twenty-two stores in the Hudson river valley may be purchased by the Schafer Stores Company of Schenectady. The Schafer Company operates a chain of stores in the west. The Nelson Beef Company has a store on North Front street in this city. The report of the sale could not be verified by the Poughkeepsie paper as Harry W. Nelson, head of the Nelson Company, was on his way to South America and would not return for several weeks.

NEGRO ADMITS HE ATTACKED YOUNG GIRL

William Butler, Del. Jan. 22.—Harry Butler, a negro accused of attacking Eleanor Steinmetz, 12 year old daughter of a farmer near Georgetown, Del., is safe in the Washington jail today after two state highway policemen created crowds of nearly 500 men bent on lynching him.

The girl is in a serious condition. Butler is said to have admitted his guilt.

Count of Appeals Received.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—The court of appeals today received until February 23. During the recess, the court probably will decide its attention to the consideration of what is known as the moneyed capital tax case, a litigation involving the collection of some $10,000,000 in state and local revenues.

Security First, Policy of France

Painleve Says France Must Be Convinced That Her Security Is Assured Before Beginning Reduction of Armaments.

(Copyright 1926, by International News Service.)

Paris, Jan. 22.—Until France is convinced that her security is absolutely assured, she will hesitate to reduce her armaments much below their present status.

This policy of France was outlined today by M. Paul Painleve, minister of war and former premier, in an exclusive interview with the International News Service.

"France recognizes as armaments only those forces which are indispensable to the security of the country and which have no aggressive character," declared M. Painleve. "She will support the League of Nations fully in any endeavor to forestall and eliminate aggressive armaments."

"The thesis which the French delegation will sustain in the preparatory commission meeting at Geneva in February to arrange for the League of Nations disarmament conference, will be the same as that so eloquently sustained by Paul Boncour on several occasions at Geneva."

"France ardently desires disarmament but she wants to maintain the order of the Geneva protocol, which France alone of the permanent members of the League council has ratified; arbitration, security, disarmament."

"France has always made the greatest possible efforts for the institution of stable peace and absolutely security in the world. Disarmament is the necessary corollary of such a state of affairs."

"The presence of the United States at the preliminary Geneva disarmament conference is indispensable," Painleve declared. "The fact that America has small land forces does not mean that she won't be able to make her influence felt. And that influence, we know, will always be in the direction of peace."

"The chief task of the league is to wipe out the 'fire traps' of Europe. But questions which directly interest nations not now members of the league; how can they be settled peacefully without the permanent support of all great nations and especially of the United States?"

"M. Painleve revealed that he has completed his project for re-organizing the army and for the reducing of compulsory military service from eighteen months to one year."

"Thus before the signature of a general accord," he declared, "France does not hesitate to reduce her armed forces. At the present time the French metropolitan army comprises only 350,000 men."

Tug Schoonmaker Sunk in River

With the Tug Berber She Was Towing Large In Spuyten Duyvil When Heavy Seas Swamped Her—Crew Escaped in Safety.

The Cornell tug John D. Schoonmaker was sunk in the Spuyten Duyvil of New York city Thursday night, but the crew managed to escape safely to the Cornell Line tug Berber. Both tugs had charge of a scow they were towing through the Spuyten Duyvil. The water was extremely rough and a heavy sea, swamping her. Before she sank to the bottom the crew, who were on deck, managed to get safely aboard the Berber. Arrangements were made this morning by the Cornell Line to have the Schoonmaker raised by a wrecking company in New York.

Operators Have Not Accepted

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 22.—The operators have not accepted E. J. Lynett's plan for settlement of the hard coal strike, according to a statement issued by the anthracite operators conference here at noon today.

The statement of the operators said: "Regarding the reports that the operators had accepted a strike settlement plan proposed by E. J. Lynett of the Scranton Times, the conference states that Mr. Lynett's plan did not meet any requirements of the situation and had not been accepted by Major Inglis or the operators."

Lewis Accepts New Peace Plan To End Strike

Inglis Approves Editor Lynett's Proposal With Reservations—Proposal Provides for Immediate Return and a Five Year Contract.

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 22.—The miners stand ready to go into a new conference with the operators at the earliest possible moment," John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America announced today in accepting a new peace plan to end the strike of 158,000 anthracite coal miners.

The new plan, proposed by E. J. Lynett, Scranton publisher, provides among other things, for the immediate return of the miners to their jobs and that a five year contract be made.

Lewis accepted the new peace plan in full. It has been provisionally accepted by W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the operators.

Expect New Conference.

A new conference of operators and miners is expected to be called at once.

Efforts were being made to get in touch with Alvin Markle, who was chairman of the conference of operators and miners in New York city recently which broke up after three weeks of deliberation, without an agreement having been reached.

Markle is in Hazelton, according to information here. He has been a persistent advocate of peace and is regarded as certain that he will immediately call a new conference.

Lewis Accepts.

Lewis came to Scranton this morning from Wilkes Barre, his temporary headquarters, and immediately went to the office of the Scranton Times, of which paper Lynett is editor.

The conference was brief. Lewis emerged and informed newspapermen that he had accepted the editor's peace plan "in full."

The editor's proposal already has been approved, with reservations by W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' negotiation committee.

The plan proposes an immediate return to the mines of the 158,000 striking miners. It also provided for a five year agreement with provision that would safeguard against future tie ups of the anthracite industry.

News of the acceptance of the plan by Lewis spread through the strike-stricken district like wildfire. Lewis's action means that the strike is closer to a settlement than at any time since the men dropped their tools last September 1.

May Call Conference.

The next step, it is believed, will be taken by Alvin Markle, who was the impartial joint chairman of the ill-fated conference of miners and operators in New York recently which broke up after days of wearisome efforts of the conferees to reach an agreement.

Markle is expected to call an immediate conference of the operators and miners to get them to agree on a new contract—now that the miners and operators appear to be in virtual agreement on Editor Lynett's proposal.

That important developments had been pending became apparent Tuesday night, when Lewis had been engaged in a number of conferences and was frequently away from his temporary headquarters in a Wilkes Barre hotel. It is now understood that he had been conferring with other union leaders on the Lynett plan.

Accepts Three Points.

Inglis, in a letter to Lynett said the operators saw no objection to points one, two and three of his plan, namely:

"The miners to resume work immediately, that a five year contract be made and that the wages in effect under the last contract to continue during the terms of the new contract, unless changes were provided."

Fourth Point Questioned.

Having accepted three of the main points in Lynett's proposal, Inglis indicated there were some questions to be settled regarding the fourth point which follows:

"At the instance of either party given in writing sixty days before two years have elapsed from the signing of the contract a conference may be called for the consideration of changes in the agreement on the subject of wages until the end of the five year contract, whether the conferees agree upon a change of wages or not."

Inglis said: "As to paragraph four, it would appear that after two years no questions as to adjustment of wages could be raised by either party, the wages would be fixed for the last three years of a five year period, although it would be in this latter period that conditions are most an issue. The provision that the miners are to remain at work whether or not agreement is reached is one for which we have all along contended, and which has been opposed by Mr. Lewis on all occasions."

Chief Governing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health: Mr. and Mrs. John Wells Weaver, Highland, a son, Wallace Bruce, at Poughkeepsie Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doe, 27 Lafayette avenue, a daughter, Madeline Alice, at Poughkeepsie Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley, East Kingston, a daughter, Mary, at Poughkeepsie Hospital.

Torso of Woman Is Identified

Dismembered Body Identified as That of Miss Anna May Dietrich—Autopsy Fails to Establish Cause of Death.

Media, Pa., Jan. 22.—Authorities today said that the headless and legless body found near here late yesterday was positively identified this morning as that of Miss Anna May Dietrich, a spinster, of Norwood, Pa.

The body was identified by the dead woman's brother-in-law, Alexander Schull, with whom she lived.

The dismembered body, carefully wrapped and strapped, was found near the clubhouse of the Rose Tree Hunt Club, where it had been tossed from an automobile, according to authorities. Fifteen feet away were the legs. The head, however, has not been found and investigators believe it was destroyed. The actual killing and severance of the limbs, said to have been done by one skilled in the use of surgical instruments, had been done elsewhere.

An autopsy performed by Dr. D. Clark Shult, coroner's physician, failed to establish the actual cause of death. There was no sign of an illegal operation, declared Dr. Shult, the first theory seized upon by the authorities for a motive for the killing.

Dr. Shult said she might have died a natural death, but added that the woman may have been strangled to death and the head severed at the point where the strangler's fingers crushed out life.

Positive identification was made by Schull, through scars on the right leg, ankle and sole, and through a secret pocket in the lining of her blue silk dress, made by Schull's wife, Miss Dietrich had been missing since Tuesday.

The body when found was wrapped in brown paper and newspapers. It was tied neatly and securely with straps. The body was fully clothed. A gold wrist watch was about the left wrist. Examination of the body showed that the head had been severed at the windpipe and jugular vein in a sharp clean manner, with the skill of a practiced surgeon or one familiar with the use of surgical instruments. The legs, likewise, had been cut clean, the bone having been sawed as if in an amputation by a nurse.

Where Miss Dietrich met her death is unsolved. Some time after she left her sister Tuesday evening, police believe, she met the man who was to become her slayer.

Who that man was authorities fear may never be known.

Today detectives will try to trace Miss Dietrich's movements and question those with whom she went out. The roads and vicinity of the spot where the body was found will be searched thoroughly for trace of the head.

Arraignment of Durkin Delayed

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Arraignment of Martin J. Durkin on the first of two charges of murder against him was continued for a week today when Attorney John P. Tyrrell, claiming to represent Durkin's mother, and declaring the murdering Romeo had no counsel of his own yet, declared that no one on the side of the defense had perused the indictments.

Michael Alcorn, mentioned by Tyrrell as probably the man who would be retained by Durkin, obtained the delay by saying he was holding acceptance of the case because he now is engaged in a murder trial and could not proceed at once in the Durkin affair.

The court then agreed to hold up arraignment until next Friday.

Coal Stocks Jump In N. Y. Market

New York, Jan. 22.—News from Scranton that the plan of E. J. Lynett, editor of the Scranton Times, to end the anthracite strike had been acted upon favorably by both miners and operators, had an immediate effect upon coal stocks in the New York market.

Glend Alden Coal Company stock jumped nearly 10 points in the curb market.

Stocks of the coal producers and the coal carrying railroad advanced several points. Lehigh Valley coal certificates gained 2 points; Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron went up 2 1/2 points; Lehigh Valley railroad advanced 3 points and other securities affected by the new development were strengthened in sympathy.

Defer Punishment Of Van Keuren

Jury Finds Saurgettes Road Resident Guilty of Assault—Sentence to be Imposed by Judge Fowler on Monday.

William W. Van Keuren, indicted for assault, second degree, was found guilty of the charge late Thursday afternoon in county court. It was alleged that Mr. Van Keuren who resides on the Saurgettes road in the town of Ulster threatened one Edward Miller with a shot-gun. At the time Miller was giving a clam-bake to some boys who had been working for him during the summer.

After the boys were sailing clam-bakes through the air when Mr. Van Keuren accused them of throwing them on his property across the road. This the boys denied. They claim that Mr. Van Keuren went into his house and secured a gun and threatened to shoot Miller. One of the lads testified that Mr. Miller told Van Keuren to come and put the gun away or he would "show it down his throat."

In the argument Mr. Miller, according to lads, called Mr. Van Keuren a dirty rat and Mr. Van Keuren used some unprintable names. No one was injured and Mr. Van Keuren returned home and one lad testified that he resumed his position on his front porch with the gun nearby.

During the argument a client of Mr. Miller drove up in a car and Miller returned to his office followed by the lads. All of the lads denied they had thrown clamshells on the Van Keuren property.

Judge Fowler postponed sentence in the case until Monday.

Pepper Announces Coal Settlement

Washington, Jan. 22.—Senator George W. Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, announced on the floor of the senate this afternoon that "the anthracite coal strike has been settled."

"I have just been advised by long distance telephone," said Pepper, "that the strike has been settled."

The announcement was made by Pepper in the course of a speech dealing with the world court and the League of Nations in which he dwelt on the force of public opinion in the settlement of controversies.

The Pennsylvania senator, who has frequently been in contact with the anthracite coal operators, did not elaborate on his statement, but continued with his speech.

It is assumed Pepper had reference to the new Lynett peace plan. Senator Pepper later informed International News Service that his information came from a "very reliable source" in Pennsylvania and from a man prominent politically.

"I am informed that the operators accepted the plan last night, but left it open this morning until John L. Lewis could pass upon it," said Pepper. "Mr. Lewis has now approved the plan."

The Pennsylvania senator was informed that the operators denied having accepted the plan. He merely smiled.

Hahle's car in the barn was destroyed and the barn was gutted, the roof and two sides of the structure being burned. As the barn was of frame construction the fire burned briskly and kept the fire department busy until it was brought under control.

KITCHENS TELL SHORT STORIES

Collected Tales From Cook's Domain Would Crowd Pantry Shelf.

Washington.—Boston, within the last year, has lost two landmarks. Most Americans have heard of the Washington elm which stood in Cambridge, but most Americans have had much closer acquaintance with the Parker house, which has been surrendered to the wreckers. In the kitchen of the famous hotel a cook created the Parker house roll.

"When it comes to geographic short stories, kitchens can tell many anecdotes of strange times, strange lands, and strange peoples," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society in Washington, D. C. "Flavored with history and spiced with the humor of humanity, the collected tales from the cook's domain will push out the ends of many a five-foot pantry shelf.

Bun Making in Capitol.

"Take, for example, the intimate relation between congress and a famous bun. Below the floor of the capitol the Vienna roll was first made for America. It happened this way. All the quiet on the Potomac was shattered one day during the Civil war by rumors that the Confederates were plotting to blow up the bakeries on the outskirts of the city. Next day Pennsylvania avenue saw a strange parade, bakers and baker wagons, bakes ovens and baker supplies, toiling along to the capitol. While the bakeries occupied the extensive cellars under the halls of congress, Vienna rolls and French bread were introduced in the capital and a taste for them spread through the nation.

"Benjamin Franklin is the father of the broom industry in America. A lady came to Philadelphia from Europe and brought a whisk broom. Franklin happened to see it one day and noticed the unusual stiffness of the fibers. Attached to one straw he saw a seed pod which he requested of the lady. Franklin is said to have planted the seed and thus he grew the first broom corn in the United States.

"Franklin had many honors in many fields, but there is no record of him winning the blue ribbon. Nowadays prize horses and cows, prize peanuts and babies, are given blue ribbons, but that is a misuse of a sacred privilege. The 'Cordon Bleu,' as the French say, is the supreme distinction for cookery. An argument between Louis XV and Madame Du Barry brought it into being. The king said only men could be superior chefs. Madame Du Barry set about having a wonderful dinner prepared. The king came, ate, and asked the name of the chef that he might attach him to the royal household. 'I have caught you at last,' said Du Barry. 'The chef is not a man at all, but a woman. I demand a recompense for her, worthy both of her and your majesty. Your royal bounty has made my negro servant, Zamore, governor of Lucienness, and I cannot accept less than the 'Cordon Bleu' for my cook.'

"Some names of familiar kitchen supplies have curious origins. Cucumbers are named for a famous city of Greek antiquity. Greece still is famous as the home of the currant, and in olden days the variety which grew in the vicinity of the present Gortio was prized. Gortio is on the site of old Corinth, pronounced in former times 'Coruants.' Cantaloupes take their name from Cantalupo, Italy, but a popular variety favored in America, Rocky Ford cantaloupes, originated in Rocky Ford, a small town of Colorado.

Brussels Sprouts Vs. Carrots. "The neighboring Iberian peninsula has bequeathed to the English language the luscious word 'marmalade.' The Portuguese preserved quince in sirup and called it 'marmelo.' In coming over to the English, the word spread its arms wide and took in many more fruits, and even nuts to label toothsome marmalade. Brussels sprouts came by their name more honestly than brussels carrots; the sprouts have been a favorite with Belgium since the fourteenth century, but the carrots were never made in Brussels.

"Cooks have a finger in the broth of language, witness Saratoga chips. These were popularized by a negro cook at a summer hotel on Morris lake, Saratoga, N. Y. Good cooking, however, is supposed to be a southern specialty, but Boston has done more advertising. In addition to the Parker-house roll, the Hub city has put its label on Boston baked beans and Boston cream pie.

"Knives and forks at six paces alone can settle the title to porthouse-meat. Boston claims that the choice cut was the particular pride of Porter's tavern, a roadhouse near Cambridge. New York holds that the proprietor of a saloon, or porter house, near the old city market observed that the steaks cut from the thick end of the sirloin were best. He insisted that his butcher cut none but these for him. The fame of 'porthouse-meat' spread rapidly and the term is now established in the terminology of meats.

"Both kitchen and grocery are implicated in the international complication of macaroni and its cousin spaghetti. Like so many useful permutations of Christian civilization, macaroni is an invention of China—or Japan. It was introduced in Europe by the Germans from whom the Italians learned to make it."

THE town was a New England community of about 15,000 inhabitants. The principal man in the town was Jacob Fullerton whose wealth had assumed such proportions as to cause his fellow townsmen to ask each other, "How much do you suppose old Jake is worth anyhow?" Jacob's daughter, Madeline, was fair to look upon and, though now approaching the age of twenty-six, was still unmarried. Whereat people wondered. The answer was that she was in love with Harold Farlington and her father would not hear of her marrying that young man. Harold would not hear of her marrying him, either—he was poor.

Madeline would have eloped with him; but he had a horror of being considered a fortune-hunter and, more than all, considered that he had no right to take the girl he loved from the wealth and luxury with which she was now surrounded to share his present privations.

Harold's father had been obsessed with the idea that nature had intended him for a great financier—whereas nature had intended him for no such thing. The result of this little misunderstanding was that after divesting himself of an inherited fortune, Farlington senior had died of worry and chagrin, leaving his son with an education and a profession and naught else besides. So Harold had set out to practice law in his native town. But so far the two older lawyers there had seemed sufficient for the needs of the town.

Into Harold's little office walked one day Jacob Fullerton, beaming with smiles. Harold could hardly have been more surprised had the soldiers and sailors' monument in the square casually dropped in on him. For a year Jacob's only recognition of the young lawyer had been a scowl and a nod. "Well, Harold my boy," said the man of money "how's business?"

"Not very good, Mr. Fullerton," replied Harold; "the people of this community don't seem, as yet, to appreciate my legal ability."

"Hum," said Jacob. "Well, you can afford to wait awhile. Your father, I am sorry to say, was not a very good judge of values; but he doubtless left you some securities upon which you can realize until you get established."

"I regret to say, sir," returned Harold, "that as far as I can find out, none of the securities left me by my father is of the slightest value."

"Too bad, too bad," sympathized Jacob. "That sort of thing is rather in my line, you know—perhaps I might pick out some of them for which a market might be made. Well, good day. Haven't seen you at the house for a long time. Madeline was speaking of you only yesterday. Come up to dinner tonight. It's her birthday. And he went out leaving Harold in a state of pure bewilderment. What was up? Was it possible that among that assortment of financial junk stowed away in an old trunk there was something of value after all—something that Jacob wanted? Yet how could that be? Harold's dubious holdings had been pronounced worthless.

He was still wondering when the office door opened to admit another visitor—this time a stranger. The stranger looked at business and immediately proceeded to business. "Mr. Harold Farlington I presume?" inquired the stranger. Harold assented. "Your father, the late Marcellus Farlington," went on the unknown "was possessed of 1,000 shares in the Valpedras Live Stock Company. Arid land—Texas—unsuitable for cattle raising—attempt a failure. Well some rich men with money to fool away—New Yorkers—think that by expending a million or so—artificial irrigation—they may, in about twenty years from now be able to make the property pay. At present worthless. Give you five dollars a share for your stock. What do you say?"

"Let you know tomorrow afternoon," replied Harold. And that was the best the stranger could get out of him.

As soon as the unknown had departed Harold called long-distance and talked with a former classmate of his, now in a Wall street office, asking him what he knew about Valpedras. That night after dinner Jacob took Harold into the library and broached the question of stocks and bonds.

"Before we go into that matter," said Harold, "I wish to ask you for the hand of your daughter."

"Why, why, my dear boy!" cried Jacob, "you are not in any financial condition to marry; especially with a girl brought up as my daughter has been."

"Oh, yes I am," replied Harold. "I am the owner of 1,000 shares of the Valpedras company. Oil has been discovered on the land—and I am a rich man."

"And you knew it when I was talking to you this morning," replied Jacob.

"No," replied Harold, "I learned it over the telephone about an hour later."

"Humph," said Jacob "that stock of yours is worth half a million—perhaps a great deal more. Settle half of it on Madeline and you can have her. Madeline! Come here and get your birthday present."

Redeemer Church Annual Meeting

Twenty-ninth Annual Meeting Held Thursday Evening—Reports of Year's Work Received and Officers Elected—Mortgage Indebtedness Reduced.

The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the congregation of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Wurts street was held Thursday evening when reports of the work accomplished during the past year were read and officers of the church council elected. The newly elected officers will be installed at the services Sunday morning. The Rev. William J. Nelson is pastor of the church.

It was reported at the meeting that the Ladies' Aid Society, the Sewing Circle and the Sunday school had contributed substantial sums toward the reduction of the mortgage indebtedness on the church property.

At the annual election W. F. Miller was elected elder and John Herrmann, George Rammung and Harry Hutton deacons for a term of three years, succeeding William C. Kukuk, Fred J. Walter and J. Leonard Salzman. The congregation adopted a resolution of appreciation for the services of Messrs. Walter and Salzman who have served as members of the official board for the past thirty years.

Plans for the observance of the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the church in January, 1927, were referred to the church council.

The treasurer's report showed that in 1925 about $10,000 had been collected for all purposes in the church.

Getting Skinnier
Every Day

Something Must Be Done and Done
Right Now—Quick.

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women, too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take as flesh and look healthy and strong. All such people can stop worrying and start to smile and enjoy life right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and now feels fine. We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing flesh producing vitamins, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are as easy to take as candy and if any thin person doesn't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to give you your money back—and only 60 cents for 60 tablets. Ask any live pharmacist anywhere.

But be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and bear in mind that for thin, sickly kids they are wonderful—a very sickly child—age 4 gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

Face covered with ugly red pimples

Resisted battled the trouble

Valley Centre, Va., Feb. 11—

"Some time ago my face became covered with little pimples which were red and ugly looking. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I used Pimple Soap and Pimple Ointment. I applied this treatment about five times every day and in a remarkably short time I was rid of the trouble. There is nothing like the Pimple treatment!" (Signed) Mrs. M. L. Cribbenberger.

Take Inventory, Urges Wigsten

Farmers in Ulster county are being urged by their Farm Bureau to take an inventory. Every possible means of cooperation is being offered except the actual doing of the work. Inventory books desired for use on any type of farm are offered free of charge at the office of the Bureau, as well as the advice and assistance of the Bureau manager in solving knotty problems which may come up in taking the inventory. That farmers are interested in receiving this service and are using it is evidenced by the fact that since Tuesday, January 19, sixty-five requests for the inventory book have been received at the office in response to a letter announcing that one hundred copies were available.

Broadcasting from Station WDBZ, Kingston Wednesday night, Bureau Manager Wigsten explained some of the advantages of taking an annual farm inventory. The first advantage mentioned was that an inventory showed "net worth above all debts," giving an actual financial standing as of the date taken. A second advantage comes in that an inventory makes a good basis for preparing a credit statement to be used in obtaining bank credit. A third advantage comes through its providing a valuable list of property for use in case of fire. Two inventories taken one year apart will show whether or not any financial progress is being made and "How Much." It eliminates some of the guesswork.

Requests for inventory books will be filled promptly while the supply lasts.

Tibetan Church Music

Charmed Sven Hedin
Dr. Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer, who was the first white man to penetrate into the interior of Tibet, has excited the curiosity of musicians by his extravagant praise of the church music of that mysterious country. He claims that he has visited no fewer than 81 temples in the land of the Grand Lama, and that he found the music of the "temple service" to be so beautiful that he was spiritually transported by it to regions supernatural. He writes: "All through Tibet the life of these monks has appeared to me and filled me with delight beyond anything I can say. The most delightful thing in all Tibet is the church music. Fresh young voices, softened by thick, dark draperies along the front of an open gallery, pour forth their wonderful hymns, full of peace and love and longing. Between whistles you hear the rumble of thunder of the bassoons and the rhythmic clash of the cymbals; then the flutes with their shrill melodies and the rolling drums, which echo through the high halls of the temples. But the singing is by far the most beautiful; it carries one up and away from the troubles of this earth."—Pierre Van Paasden, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Long List of Injuries

Result of Accidents
Examples of disease resulting from particular accidental conditions most frequently found in the experiences of the compensation commission are accidents to the head or spine resulting in epilepsy, nervous or mental disease, or insanity; serious fracture or shock resulting in traumatic pneumonia; severe trauma or severe burns or extreme exposure to cold and wet, resulting in nephritis; injuries to the eye resulting in cataract, detachment of the retina, optic atrophy, and numerous other diseases of the eye; sprain or fracture or dislocation or blow resulting in arthritis, bursitis, cellulitis, synovitis, pericarditis, osteomyelitis, or tuberculosis of the bones; serious injury to the chest, with traumatic pneumonia; injury with tuberculosis of a bone or joint; injury with severe infection, or severe injury from inhalation of gas resulting in tuberculosis of the lungs.

The Man Who Builds

No man ever builds anything who doesn't first rear a castle in the air—which is old stuff, of course, but no one ever builds a castle in the air save the optimist—which is a sagacious statement. Just think that over. No man ever gets anywhere, whether it be selling strawberries or building empires or peddling ice cream, unless he possesses that unconquerable mastery of his own mind that breeds, unshakable assurance which makes him look on his building that better things are ahead.

A famous New England merchant once said: "Almost every man knows the things that must be done to get along in the world. Those who don't get along are the ones who refuse to do the things they know so well."—William L. Telling, in the American Magazine.

Advantage of Rite

A rite is a gas in which, by means of a globe in the form of a sphere, the projectile is forced to rotate before leaving the barrel. This rotary motion, maintained during flight, keeps the tendency to depart from a straight line, and to a measure overcomes atmospheric resistance.

SHARK GOD'S WRATH OF LITTLE MOMENT

Overcome by Peace Offering, or by Cement?

Hawaiian natives prophesied calamity when ground was broken in October, 1909, for the construction of Pearl harbor, America's strongest naval station, on the shore of the island of Oahu, near the city of Honolulu. For their legends said that on the site selected for the immense dry dock were the caves in which the shark god once lived. Their belief was based on the presence of numerous sharks in the vicinity.

When, on February 17, 1913, the immense coffer dam collapsed, the natives fancied that the shark god had avenged himself for the desecration of his temple. The construction company in charge of the naval works believed that faulty engineering rather than one of the ancient island gods was responsible for the collapse, and requested authority to proceed with the project. The opposition of the natives was so strong that many conferences were held before the Navy department agreed upon the plan which has since been developed.

When work began anew in December, 1914, the natives, believing that another disaster was inevitable, did what they could to avert it, and retained a female "kahuna" or priestess. They believed she possessed the ability to appease the wrath of the shark god by making offerings, and engaged her to conduct her rites on the shores of Pearl harbor during all the time that the dry dock was being reconstructed. In the spring of 1919 all was in readiness for the release of the water from the new dock. This was regarded as the supreme test. A Hawaiian foreman sacrificed a white pig and white chicken to the shark god, with prayers and supplications that the dry dock be spared.

The pumping began. It was noticed that a muddy streak arose in the water within the docks. The Hawaiians then insisted that the shark god was again attempting to break down the structure by boring through the basin. As the last foot of water was pumped out the remains of an immense shark were revealed on the bottom of the dock, and naturally the Hawaiians believed that it was the god which had destroyed the first dock. The bones were distributed among the members of the construction crew as souvenirs. Engineers who have studied both the first and second dry docks have been inclined to scout the efforts of the priestess in appeasing the shark god, and to credit the success of the second work to the fact that the present basin has a concrete thickness of 16 feet, while the collapsed dock had a base of only 8 feet.

Cancer on Increase

A careful analysis of cancer statistics gathered by the United States census bureau over a period of about twenty years in ten Eastern states reveals definitely that cancer mortality is from 25 to 30 per cent higher than it was about twenty years ago, according to Dr. J. W. Schereschewsky of the United States public health service, who made the statistical analysis and reported it to the American Medical association. "There has been a pronounced increase in the observed death rate from cancer in persons forty years old and over in the ten states comprising the original death registration area," Doctor Schereschewsky said. "Part of this increase is due to greater precision and accuracy in the filling out of death returns, but the remainder is an actual increase in the mortality of the disease."

Plan Prehistoric Park

Twenty-seven acres of land just south of Hollywood will be converted into a prehistoric park by the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art. A large number of bones of prehistoric animals have been found in the asphalt beds in this small area. If the plans work out, the park will be planted with trees and shrubbery as nearly as possible like those which grew there when the saber-toothed tiger, Imperial-tusked elephant and their contemporaries roamed in the jungles of southern California. Prehistoric animals, reproduced in stone, will be placed in this reconstructed jungle.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Counting the Pennies

"Getting to work from an all-night poker party is sometimes something of a problem," says a downtown business man. "The other morning after an awfully bad session, I found I had just a few minutes in which to reach my office several miles distant. I had only $1.24 but I called a taxi-cab. I kept one eye on the meter and when the bill amounted to $1.19, I ordered the driver to stop. I wanted the ten cents for coffee and slippers and the four cents for taxi."—Detroit News.

Little Choice

"First casualty—What happened to you?"
"Been teaching my wife to drive the car."
"Ah, ha." Why didn't you get married, as I did? Mine wanted me to teach her, and I refused.—Judge.

Farm and Home Bureau Meetings

Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau winter meetings will be held in seven communities during the week of January 25th. Manager Wigsten of the Farm Bureau announces that through the College of Agriculture at Cornell he has secured two very excellent speakers in Professor R. C. Ogle who will address meetings in poultry communities, while Professor C. H. Crosby, who is a specialist in fruit insect and disease control, will be on hand for meetings in the fruit sections. At several of the meetings Home Bureau Manager Evelyn Nance will give a talk on the subject "Food Makes a Difference," showing a series of illustrated slides on the same subject. At meetings held to date where this talk has been given it has been enjoyed and appreciated by men and women alike.

The first meeting is scheduled for Monday, January 25, beginning at 12 o'clock with a dinner served by the Home Bureau members in the Community Hall. Immediately following the meal will come the talk on Nutrition with the lantern slides for illustration. At 2 p. m., Professor Ogle will address all interested in poultry, covering the following phases: "The Care and Feeding of the Breeding Flock," and "Starting Baby Chicks Right." In addition to the subjects mentioned, Professor Ogle will conduct a "Question and Answer" period from 3:30 p. m. on.

The second meeting will be on Tuesday, January 26, in the Grange Hall at Clintonville. Both Professor Ogle and Crosby will speak. The meeting will open at 1:30 p. m., supper to be served in the hall at 6:30, with an evening session following. Topics of interest to poultrymen and fruit growers will be discussed at both afternoon and evening sessions. An added feature of the meeting will be a talk by N. H. Harpp of Hudson on "Reforestation Problems in Ulster County and New York State."

On Wednesday, January 27, a poultry and dairy meeting is scheduled for Ashbury community in the Ashbury Grange Hall, beginning at 10:30 a. m. with dinner at 12:30. The program for the day includes talks by Evelyn Nance, N. H. Harpp, R. C. Ogle and W. L. Stimson.

On Thursday, January 28, a program arranged for Flatbush community at the club rooms opens at 10:30 a. m. with dinner at 12. Speakers to include Professors Ogle and Crosby of Cornell and N. H. Harpp of Hudson.

Meetings are being arranged for Modena and Ulster Park on Friday, January 29, and on Saturday, January 30. Programs will be announced later. Farm and Home Bureau members will receive personal letters announcing each local meeting and are urged to come out and enjoy the programs.

History of Locks

The history of civilization could be written from a study of its locks and keys, for since the barred gate of Eden problems of inclusion and exclusion have concerned mankind. Egyptians and Greeks were adept at lock-making; the Spartans wrought an improvement of which the description is lost. It is a historic fact that the downfall of the Roman empire gave a marked impetus to the manufacture of wards and bolts, for Rome had policed the world and thieves were encouraged by the disappearance of strong-armed security which they had feared. It is significant in view of the prevalence of padlocks in official equipment today, that the derivation of the first word of the name is uncertain. Webster says that it may have meant a basket or panicle.

Flint Arrowheads

The bureau of American ethnology says that the art of making arrowheads from flint is not lost, but is still continued in some places by the Indians. Briefly, the process is to chip the flint with a piece of bone held against the flint, which is accomplished by a quick pressure, not a blow, knocking off a scale.

$61,000,000 for
Education in 1926Additional State Aid for City Schools.
Will Not Interfere With 25 Percent
Tax Reduction—New Tax Needed to Solve Problem.

Albany, Jan. 22.—Additional state aid for city schools will not interfere with the reduction of the state income tax 25 per cent, it was declared today at the capitol by Republican and Democratic leaders of the Legislature.

The commission appointed last fall by Governor Smith to study the problem of financing schools is said to be seriously considering the advisability of recommending that the state increase its aid to city schools by $15,000,000.

Another proposal which is being considered by the committee is for an amendment to the State Constitution which would increase the debt limit of all cities.

New York state, during the next fiscal year, will spend approximately $61,000,000 for education according to the report of the board of estimate and control, just submitted to the lawmakers. This will be an increase of about $10,000,000 more than the state ever before has spent for education in one single year.

At the 1925 session of the Legislature a bill was passed, which later was approved by Governor Smith, providing for additional state aid for local schools to the tune of $9,000,000. That money will have to be appropriated by the present Legislature. Should the legislative leaders decide on additional aid for the city schools at the present session, it is understood the bill will be so worded that it will not take effect until next year. In other words, the appropriation will not have to be made out of this year's revenues.

Some of the members of the governor's commission are said to favor a new tax of some kind as the best means of solving the school financial problem for the cities. At the hearing before Governor Smith in the fall considerable opposition developed to amending the constitution which would mean an additional tax on real estate.

When the governor appointed the commission he told the members that it would be easy enough for them to pay the state should spend more money for education but he asked them to explain and devise a way to raise the increase.

Legion of Honor Origin

The Legion of Honor, the famous French order, was instituted by Napoleon Bonaparte when he was first consul, May 19, 1802. Although this order confers honors upon distinguished civil servants of the state and eminent benefactors of humanity it is provided that three-fifths of all the medals awarded must go to the officers and men of the army and navy. During the World war thousands of the medals of the legion were awarded to soldiers and public servants. There are now five classes, the Grand cross being the highest.

Many American and British citizens received the medal of the Legion of Honor, and immediately after the war it was also conferred upon the military leaders of the allies of France.

Builders' Device

The principle of the entasis, which is a swelling or outward curve of the profile of the shaft of a column or pillar, is utilized to avoid appearance of concavity in its middle portion. In the finest examples of Greek Doric the swelling is a little below the middle point of the shaft, but never so great as to interfere with the steady diminution of the shaft from the base upward. The entasis is designed partly to counteract the optical illusion which would cause the profiles of the shaft to appear curved inward if they were bounded by straight lines. The entasis is almost invariably introduced in the spires of English churches.

A great many folks have kept free from colds and "flu" by taking just a few R-I-A-N Tablets. Many physicians use this same prescription to relieve pain and break up colds.

You will be surprised at the quick results when taken for headaches and rheumatic aches. In fact it is hard to beat them for any kind of pain. They are certain and safe. Just ask any druggist for R-I-A-N Tablets.

Franco Off for Canary Islands

Palos Morquer, Spain, Jan. 22.—Hailing from the waters of the harbor which witnessed the departure of Columbus's three caravels for a new world almost five hundred years before, the hydroplane bearing Commander Franco and his aide, Captain Itz, hopped off today for the Canary Islands, the first leg of their transatlantic flight.

The departure was marked by a salute from the guns in the harbor, cheers from the dense throng of spectators, and a general blizzing of late and flowers in the air.

About twenty land and seaplanes were in the air with Franco flying in formation. The escort was to accompany him the first hundred miles of his flight.

At the Canary Islands, which lie about 133 miles from here, Franco will take on 1,500 gallons of gasoline, and proceed to Porto Rico, the Cape Verde Islands, tomorrow.

A crowd which bade Franco adieu, it was made up of the flower of the nobility. Thousands of people of all ages and both sexes gathered for the purpose of watching him take off. The infant Alfonso was present as the representative of the king.

Franco bears with him messages from General Primo De Rivera to the president of most of the republics in South America as well as some three hundred messages from government leaders and mayors of the various cities of Spain.

The Papal Nuncio at Madrid called on the Pope asking his benediction for the fliers.

"I will triumph in order to satisfy the desires of twenty millions of Spaniards and hundred millions of other races," said Commander Franco, just before he took off.

And's Advance in Comfort and Health

A hundred years ago Thomas Adams, a Yankee boot and shoemaker of Boston, bought from a Dutch sailor a number of crudely made shoes fashioned from "India rubber" by South American natives. Adams had picked them up in Brazil, as "curiosities." All he did of them was to obtain a few to purchase the creature comforts that sailors loved, rum being the chief of these.

Mr. Adams, however, saw in them a fortune. He once called the "rubber shoe." He conceived the idea of shaping rubber shoes over the foot last so that they might be ever shoes to protect them from weather. His plan was so successful that a country-wide market for them was soon established.

It was not until 1888 that Mr. Wales, of the waterproof and cold weather made of cloth and rubber. He called them "Patent Rubber Shoes." Adams' name arose the familiar name of "rubber" for overshoes is heard even to this day from the lips of the older generation.

Mr. Wales appreciated how modern life of the comfortable things of life. For example, the fathers of men now living knew nothing of winter clothing, and the plague of wind in a house was something of which we have little conception. About a same time the new invention of rubber shoes appeared, and for the first time in the history of the race it was possible to walk the streets and hills dry shod and to return to the house in which the age-long battle with house flies had at last been won. A new era of comfort and health had opened. And this was less than a hundred years ago.—Minneapolis Journal

First Use of Spectacles

Spectacles are of French origin. The proof of this, which is the kind that ought to be acceptable on the subject, lies in the fact that the oldest known portrait wherein spectacles appear is that of Cardinal Hugues De Provence, painted by one Thomas of Modona, which represents the prelate with the w. k. globes in front of his eyes. The fresco in the church of Saint Nicolas of Trezier, of which the portrait forms a part is dated 1322. There is, it appears, in the national library at Paris an illuminated manuscript, dated 1380, which shows St. Paul wearing spectacles. One would like to know where St. Paul got the idea. He was a great traveler.

Not So Aristocratic

"How many people know that the goldfish, supposed to be the embodiment of everything placidly aristocratic, is nothing but a lowly member of the carp family?" asked the proprietor of a bird and animal store. "It's the truth. Some species of goldfish will grow to six or eight inches in length. These big goldfish betray their ancestry by their coarse scales. In other words, they look like carp."—Detroit News

Little Known of Aesop

Aesop lived during the latter half of the sixth century. The exact date of birth is unknown. He was a Phrygian, not a negro. Phrygia was a country of Asia Minor. Under the Roman empire, it was bounded on the west by Lydia and Caria; on the south by Lycia and Pisidia; on the east by Cappadocia and Galatia; and on the north by Bithynia. Phrygians were probably a branch of the great Thracian family.

Expressing Exhilaration in Sports Clothes

The exhilaration of winter sports demands something virile in costume design. Colors should be intensified and effects be very bold to make the picture effective. White is frequently the background for the costume designed for St. Moritz, or our own Quebec, but color is really the wisest choice. Fur sports coats are always in order, but they should be fur of the simplest character, but it is wool to which designers turn for their best effects, brush wool usually boldly colored in solid colors, or applied with horizontal stripes in Russian motif. Sweaters in various designs such as the Fair Isle types are very smart just now, and for more general wear, preference runs to the camel's hair colorings enhanced or not with red as one's preference dictates. All sorts and conditions of knitted suits and suits of heavy-weight jersey are added to the list of desirable things. Most of these costumes are made with a slip-on which has a turtle neck and, of course, long sleeves, and to this may be added one of the several novelty belts which are now so much in vogue. The point is to have the belt an individual unit, for belts in themselves have again great interest of detail, being often made with brilliant kid clamped along the edges with metal. From being an inconspicuous string made of the material used for the costume, the belt has developed individuality until it is no wonder that it has become a factor in smart dressing.

Esquima Theory of Death

The Eskimo theory of death is peculiar to Christian eyes, and has resulted in many tragedies. It was believed that a man had two souls, one good, one evil. When he died the good soul expected to spend eternity in him and comfort in a warm place underground. His bad soul was supposed to remain on the spot where the body died, a lasting, harmful influence over those who were luckless enough to encounter it. When a person became ill the medicine man was sent for. Almost always he pronounced the case hopeless. The invalid was then taken out of the igloo and placed on the snow to perish. It was a logical proceeding, for if he died indoors the igloo would have to be abandoned and started up forever.

Collecting Debts in 1667

Old residents of England had their own ideas of debt payment and their own methods for enforcing payment where the customer was not interested in meeting the obligation. One old method in use in 1667 was a debtor's chair, that would be placed in the office of the man to whom the debt was due. The debtor was invited to enter and, when seated in the chair, a trigger was released that clamped two levers about the knees of the debtor and held him helplessly while the other man negotiated a settlement, and the use of the chair in enforcing payment was entirely legal and in general use.—Ohio State Journal.

ENGLISH WOMEN ADOPT SMARTER FASHIONS.

London—"Englishwomen are dressing better than they used to," and "the English girl is smartly turned out," are two reports which have found their way to Paris frequently within the last few months, usually via Americans who visited London before Paris and who may be accounted impartial critics of London versus Paris style. There is a definite impression of smartness that marks a visit to London after an interval of a season, conveyed by business girls in neatly fitting coats and small matching hats, by more leisurely habits of the smart restaurants, whose clothes bespeak close allegiance to the rue de la Paix, and even by older women, who, if not up with the current modes, obviously give thought to harmonizing lines and colors.

Contrast With Older London Fashions.

An initial visit to London about four years ago brings to mind a depressing succession of figures in rough woolen coats and skirts, with jackets too long for the fashions of that year, and the belts too high. Hats turned up at back and down in front, nevertheless, to conceal the brow that was carefully being hidden that spring in Paris and New York. Shoes were low-heeled, and must have been sensible, for they were not beautiful; stockings were nondescript.

Now the change is amazing. Color impresses one first, green, wine, red fawn and the refter beige. The English girl seems to have gone in for color quite as much as her French or American sister. The favored street costume is the full-length flared coat, fur trimmed, with a small round crowned hat to match. The higher crown is not yet in evidence. Under the coat is apt to be a simple jumper frock of matching color, and under the hat is hair as boyishly bobbed as if Anne of the-rue Cambon had done it herself. The tailored variety of costume, which we are wont to associate with tweeds, heather, and Bond street, is very neat when it is worn, and made of woolsens which are not as rough as those of several years ago. The sports hat has shrunk to the proportions decreed for it by Rebois when she adapted the razz band idea in felt from the favorite hat of her British clients.

Attention Accorded Accessories.

Pumps with baby Louis XV heels, made silk hosiery, light gloves, and pocketbooks that tone in with the color scheme, all attract to careful attention to personal adornment. And in footgear, the English girl has boldly launched a style of her own that has a certain piquancy and may be practical as well in the high "Russian" boot.

Pearl necklaces, crystal bangles and novelty bracelets help to emphasize the success of Dame Fashion in London. Cosmetics now count in the chief domain in which English women do not compete with Parisians and New Yorkers, but English complexions seldom need rouge.

The best equipment possible had been provided by the Benedictine Sisters and every standard of the American College of Surgeons and the Catholic Hospital Association met. The hospital had been approved Class A by the American College of Surgeons.

Nathan Straus Crowns Long Life of Service by $650,000 Gift to Benefit All Creeds in Holy Land

NATHAN STRAUS

NATHAN STRAUS, pioneer merchant and philanthropist, who has given away the larger part of his fortune for child-welfare activities throughout the world and for the rebuilding of Palestine as the Jewish Homeland, has just announced his most outstanding gift to the Holy Land: a contribution of $650,000 to be used in various constructive relief measures for the benefit of all Palestine, irrespective of race or creed.

For many years Mr. Straus has carried on health work in Palestine, which, while aimed at hastening the development of the country as the Jewish Homeland, has been administered to all the needy people of the Holy Land without regard to race or creed. Child-welfare work, particularly the introduction of pasteurized milk for the babies of the Holy Land, has been the venerable philanthropist's chief activity in Palestine.

"The Grand Old Man of American Philanthropy," as Mr. Straus is called, was the first to campaign for the use of pasteurized milk among the poor infants in America.

His pasteurized milk program, widely copied throughout the United States and Europe, was recently commended by the League of Nations.

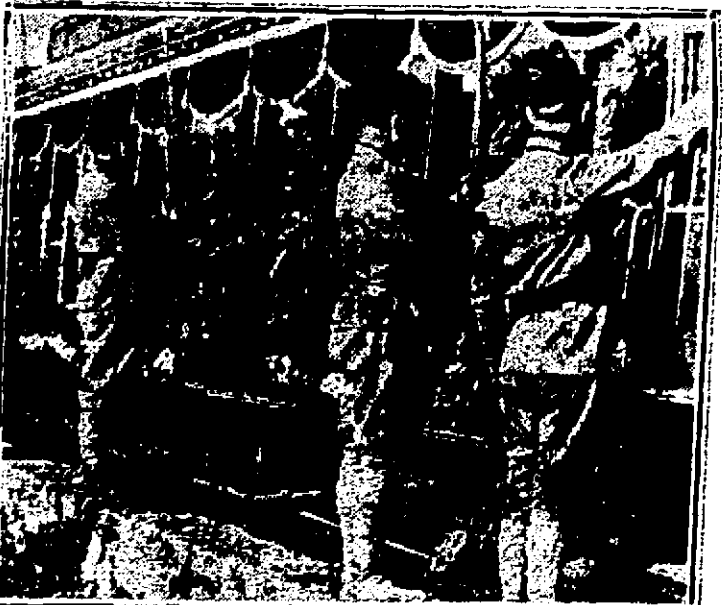

Mr. Straus has specified that his present contribution of $650,000 be divided as follows:

$500,000 for the creation of a trust fund for welfare work among all the people of Palestine;

$100,000 for the creation of a great health center in Palestine, to administer his public health work and to house the administrative offices of the Hadassah Medical Organization, which carries on an extensive public health and medical program throughout Palestine;

$50,000 as a contribution toward the United Palestine Appeal, of which Dr. Stephen S. Wise is Chairman, and which is now raising $5,000,000 among the Jews of America to increase colonization and immigration activities in Palestine, so that 60,000 additional Jewish immigrants from Eastern and Central Europe can be settled on the land this year.

come and have the best care possible.

"Now we had doubled our capacity to 100 beds the board of directors and staff had decided that the common policy in other cities, where the open staff prevails, had been adopted here, whereby any reputable practicing physician in the city or county is welcome to come and bring their patients and take care of them."

He extended a welcome to the new staff members and the courtesies of the hospital to them. He then thanked the Benedictine Sisters, the staff and nurses for their splendid cooperation during the year.

Sister Margaret Gives Thanks.

Sister Margaret also welcomed the new staff members and spoke of her great satisfaction in the hospital management. She said that Father Scully, Miss Whitney, Miss Payne, the doctors and nurses had all done everything possible to cooperate with her and she wished to thank them all for their loyal support, the outlook for the year 1926 is very promising, that the census was 60.

An epidemic fever had been placed in the hospital and was working very satisfactorily.

An ultra violet ray machine had been added during the year.

Sister Margaret reported that the annual ball receipts were $2,000 and the Lazarar $2,155.89, was received and a vote of thanks given to the Ladies' Auxiliary and every one who participated in making both a success.

Thanks for Generous Gifts.

A vote of thanks was given to Cardinal Hayes and the Catholic Charities for their generous gift of $25,000 during the year.

Dean Scully was also thanked by the board of directors and staff for his untiring efforts to make the Benedictine Hospital the best possible.

A vote of thanks was also given Mother Monica and the Benedictine Sisters for their loyal support and very generous help during the year.

To Sister Margaret, the superintendent, the board and staff gave their thanks and praise for the fine cooperation she has given at all times.

Around Orchard

GET MICE BEFORE THEY GET TREES

"Get the mice before the mice get your fruit trees," says Miles D. Pirnie of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Any fruit grower is liable to losses of hundreds of dollars, and the aggregate loss every year runs into many thousands of dollars.

Mr. Pirnie says that the mice can be controlled, and that the best way is to stop them permanently with strychnine.

Sift an eighth of an ounce of powdered strychnine to which has been added a quart of rolled oats. Stir it well to distribute it evenly.

Heat the oat flakes and then pour over them a mixture of about six table-spoonfuls of paraffin, which should be well stirred to coat each flake with the grease.

When the flakes cool each one will be poisoned, with a waterproof coat of grease which is attractive to the mice. Place this poisoned bait in a tin can or a wooden shelter at the base of as many trees as possible, under boards, near runways, and along stone walls. It should not be placed so that birds will find it—some sort of a container should always be used.

Other practices to which Mr. Pirnie calls attention are the use of wire-screen guards around the base of the trees, and close cultivation. Both of these help discourage the mice, but do not remove the source of the trouble as does the poison, which is recommended in all serious cases.

"The greatest damage usually occurs," says Mr. Pirnie, "in orchards where dead grass and weeds are left to form a shelter for the mice near the base of the trees. Here the mice make runways and build their nests, close to a good food supply and protected from their natural enemies, the hawks, owls, cats, skunks, foxes and weasels."

Prune Grapes in Spring

Where Drainage Is Poor

In some localities where there was an excessive amount of rainfall through the late summer and early fall, there is likely to be some winter injury to grapes, particularly in the case of grapes that have been planted on rather poorly drained ground.

The reason for this is very manifest to the growers. These rains prevented the newly formed grape buds on the new, immature wood from reaching maturity before freezing weather.

This may make spring pruning a little more advisable than fall pruning in a good many such vineyards.

The solution of problems of this sort, so far as it is humanly possible to solve them, is very thorough drainage of the vineyard. The drainage is a profitable proposition for grapes if the ground is not absolutely well drained to begin with.

In the case of the small home vineyard, usually a location is available where drainage is perfect. If, because of its convenience or otherwise, it is necessary to place the grapes on a poorly drained piece of ground in order to have them in some particular location, by all means tile the land. It will pay you well.

In rainy seasons, particularly, the use of a cover crop between rows of grapes is very desirable. Weeds make a good cover crop and they are common enough in most vineyards so that a planting of a crop does not concern the grower very much. However, where good, clean cultivation is practiced right along, it may be well to seed a good cover crop. Select one that does not shade the ground very much, being rice, wheat, barley, buckwheat, or the like.

Two Considerations in Setting Out Orchard

Two very important considerations in setting an orchard are good water drainage and good air drainage. Fruit trees will not develop in soil where they have "wet feet," natural drainage will give better results than artificial or tile drainage, but the latter will be fully satisfactory if thoroughly done. The orchard site should be so located that cold air will move away from it as this will prevent freezing of the blossoms during a cold spell in the spring and consequent loss of the crop. Low-headed peach trees are best and the round trees should be cut back to two feet when setting. By use of modern extension hawses the low hanging branches do not seriously interfere with tilling the orchard.

The tree should have three to five main branches, two of which should come out of the same place on the trunk, forming a crotch, as there are apt to split when loaded with fruit.

Girdling Apple Trees

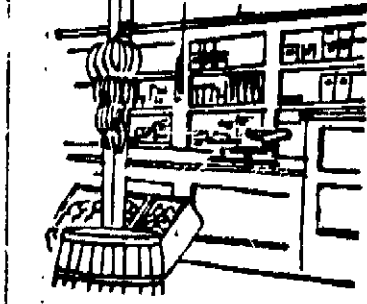

Girdling apple trees is done in the spring when the leaves are petioled. It is accomplished by either removing a ring of bark two or three inches wide entirely encircling the trunk or simply sawing the bark with a sharp knife and removing some of it. It must be understood, however, that this is a dangerous practice and must be employed with caution. Girdling is not to be recommended and should never be done on a large scale.

No Immediate Danger

Senator William F. McKinley, senior United States senator from Illinois, tells this one as the best he has ever heard:

In the early days of automobiles, when roads were unimproved, a friend of mine started over the clay hills down South just after a terrible rain. Thinking every minute he would get on better road, he kept on driving until finally the mud was up to his hub. He kept on driving until it was up to the bottom of the car. Then he was forced to stop. Seeing a hat a few yards ahead of his automobile lying on the mud, and thinking someone had lost it he got out of the car and walked toward the hat. By the time he had reached the place where the hat was lying on the mud, he was up to his neck. Raising the hat, he was very much astonished to find a man's head under it. My friend, while up to his own neck in mud, was very accommodating, and raising the hat said to the man underneath the hat: "Well, stranger, can I help you any?" The stranger looked up with a silly grin on his face, and he said: "No, I guess I'm all right. I'm on my horse."—Exchange.

Robins Stand on Rights
The robin has lived so long in the company of man that you will seldom find it far from a human dwelling. In the suburbs of towns one pair of birds will have three or four gardens which they look upon as their own preserve, and if another robin attempts to enter their domain a fight takes place. The stranger is often driven away, but sometimes the newcomer is victorious, and then the first pair have to seek fresh grounds.

Sea-Monarch

The "king of the sea" is the humble herring. Thomson's biography supplies the reason thus: "The head of an average-sized whale is from 15 to 16 feet, and the lips open some 6 or 8 feet; yet to such a mouth there is scarcely any throat, not sufficiently large to allow a herring to pass down it. This little scaly fellow, some 14 inches in length, would choke a monster whale, and is hence called 'the king of the sea.'"

Found Famous Writer

Had Been Before Him

The monument to Guy De Maupassant at Miromesnil, Norway, recalls a story illustrating how easily unconscious literary plagiarism may be committed. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle once told a friend that, traveling in Switzerland, he came upon an inn isolated in the mountains for four months in every year. By the time he had reached the plain below he had mapped out in his mind a story in which two enemies were to be shut up in the inn for four months of isolation. At the first railway bookstall he came to one of De Maupassant's books caught his eye. He bought it and, turning to the first page, "L'Auberge" appeared as the heading of the story. The "Auberge" was his identical inn, the story was of two enemies shut up there during the winter, and the denouement the same as he had imagined.

Off to the Front

He was a splendid figure as he stood there in the hallway, his rifle slung over his shoulder, his automatic strapped tightly around his waist, and his bag of hand grenades in his hand.

"His wife and children clung tearfully to him as he tried to comfort them. 'Fear not,' he said, 'I'll return.' But in his heart he knew the dangers that awaited him. 'I'll call you up at noon,' he said, 'tearing himself away, and let you know if I'm alive.'"

The door slammed. The wife stood tragically alone in the hallway. The jeweler had gone to his day's work.—Life.

Monticello Beat Kingston, 41-27

Up until the last three or four minutes of the Kingston-Monticello match at Monticello, Thursday evening the game was an exciting affair and "anybody's" match. Then the Monticello outfit started madly after points and when the final whistle was sounded the score read: Monticello 41, Kingston 27. At half time the teams were on even terms, the score being 17 all. During most of the second half the teams fought stubbornly to break away from each other with little success until the late minutes when the Monticello aggregation greatly outscored the locals.

Nelson of the visitors was the big scorer of the contest with 15 marks. Van Buren and Dolson were the leading point gatherers for Kingston with nine markers each.

Port Jervis Five Here Tonight

Coach O'Leary and his little band of Maroon and White ball tossers are confident of a win over the Port Jervis basketball team this evening in the High School gym. The local aggregation stuck quite an important feather in its hat when it tossed aside the strong New Paltz Normal team, an aggregation which the Poughkeepsie High School team, with a splendid season's record is a little too cautious to take on. This DUSO match this evening will also give Kingston High School a splendid opportunity to gain a little side revenge on the Port Jervis school, which gave Kingston such a hearty trouncing at football.

Although Port Jervis is one higher in the league standing than Kingston, the locals have an excellent chance in defeating the Orange County aggregation. The Poughkeepsie outfit found it a rather difficult task to trim the local basketball team and then met the Port Jervis team and defeated this aggregation by one of the biggest scores of the season. Kingston also easily trimmed Middletown High School which the Port team succeeded in beating by but a lone point.

Coach O'Leary will probably start the match this evening with his "first varsity." Ernie Smith will probably be in the pivot position with Bruhn and Porter in the forward posts and Schultz and Short in the back court.

A preliminary match between the K. H. S. Seconds and the Employed Boys team of the "Y" will start at 7:00. The DUSO match will probably begin at 8:15.

Safety in Submarines
The Navy department says that as a means of escape from a submarine, the crew climbs into the conning tower and lets in air to an amount which creates a pressure greater than that outside. The conning tower is then opened from the inside and the pressure is so great that it shoots the crew out of the conning tower.

FIRST REAL TEST TODAY FOR HELEN WILLS
Cannes, Jan. 22.—The Riviera sun broke through the clouds today and fired a record tournament crowd in the Metropole courts here where Miss Helen Wills, the American tennis star, will this afternoon meet Mrs. R. F. Meschlin, the former Miss Leslie Bancroft, of Boston, in a battle to fight her way into the semi-finals of the Metropole tournament.

Today's match is regarded as the first real test of Miss Wills's ability and the Riviera tennis fans are intensely interested in the play of this American girl, who has already amazed them with her display of form.

ROANERS DEFEATED THE CRESCENT FIVE
The Roaners defeated the Crescent Five in a rather rough game at the Epworth Hall by the score of 41 to 25, on Thursday afternoon. Boyce, Baile and Chipp were the leading scorers. Roberts played a good center position. Port made most of the points for the Crescents.

The Roaners would like to book games with the Freshman, Begins, Presbyterian, St. Mary's Scouts and any team in the Y. M. C. A. between the ages of 14 and 16. Call McGrath's store.

Says Tunney Is Logical Contender

New York, Jan. 22.—Having definitely admitted that he was in the field for a Dempsey-Tunney championship bout at Jersey City next summer, Tex Rickard today re-affirmed his statement that he considered Tunney the logical contender but failed to explain why he had placed Gene below Harry Willis in his boxing rankings, issued last week. He merely stated that Tunney deserved the position because of his knockouts over Carpenter, Madden, Gibbons and Spilla and that Willis had forfeited his chance by meeting third raters and breaking faith with the local commission by signing to meet Dempsey at South Bend, Indiana.

Rickard would not admit that he was negotiating with Dempsey, contrary to the commission's edict, but indicated that he hoped to evade this issue.

"I have no personal license in New York state," he said. "I am merely a director of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which is licensed. Therefore, if I want to put on Dempsey bout as an individual, I don't see how the commission can interfere with me. A Dempsey-Tunney bout at Jersey City would be my personal business and not the affair of the Madison Square Garden Corporation."

CLINTON SENIORS PLAY MARGARETVILLE TONIGHT.
The Clinton Seniors will travel this evening to Margaretville where they will mix blows with the crack Margaretville High School team. The mountain outfit has cleaned up many teams in that section and are bound to give the locals a fast battle this evening. The Margaretville team has defeated Tannersville High School, an aggregation which the Clinton lads have also defeated. This match has been anticipated for many weeks in that section and a large number of fans from the surrounding villages will probably turn out to witness this match.

Coach Mike Van Aken will take the following players to Margaretville this evening, Smith, Baird, McGinnis, Slater, Markle, Newkirk, McGrath and Dingman. The team will make the trip by bus and all players are requested to meet at Epworth Hall at 5:30. The bus will leave Epworth Hall at 6:00 sharp.

LEADER QUINTE TO PLAY THE SENATORS.
The Leader team will meet the strong Senator aggregation, Saturday night at Epworth Hall. The Leader outfit started on a winning road last week by trimming the Wurts Street Baptist five in a close match and will try to keep this winning streak intact, Saturday evening.

The Leader outfit will probably start the affair with Cahill at the center post, Rainford and Snyder in the forward positions and Quinn and Hyatt at the guard positions. A preliminary match will be played between two girl teams of the church.

SALVATION ARMY FIVE TO PLAY POUGHKEEPSIE
A pair of crack teams will meet Saturday afternoon at Epworth Hall when the strong Hedding Street team of Poughkeepsie and Captain Miller's Salvation Army are line up against each other. The Poughkeepsieans stand in second place in the Church League of their city while the Salvation Army lads have also turned out an enviable record this season. The match is scheduled for 7:15 and the proceeds will be for the benefit of the Clinton Avenue Junior League.

ST. JOSEPH'S PLAY ST. MARY'S TONIGHT
The strong St. Joseph's outfit will meet the St. Mary's aggregation at the downtown court this evening. The upstart Saints have already scored a win over their downtown brothers and tonight's match ought to prove a tight affair.

The St. Joseph's aggregation will probably start the affair with Redman, Kahan, Cahill, Davis and Merritt. The St. Mary's team will choose from Joyce, Rice, Gidley, Brack, Clark, Noble and Grancy to start the match.

A Bad Match For Milligan

British Champion Meets Jack Elvic Tonight and Milligan's Chances Are Considered Poor—Lynch Meets Graham.
(By Davis J. Walsh.)
New York, Jan. 22.—Having been duly exhorted into the big money by the megaphone men, Tommy Milligan, welterweight champion of Great Britain, will make his long-deferred reappearance in an American ring tonight and everything is all to the attar of roses, except that they picked an opponent who would make Pavlov look like an aggravated case of falsetto crooks. In a weak moment, they named Jack Elvic, one of those pestiferous gents who defies any and all to make a showing either with or against him.

From Milligan's standpoint, the match isn't as silly as it sounds. It is stiller.

According to the original plans, he was to have met Mickey Walker for the title but the state athletic commission would have none of it. This was bad for all concerned but worse for Milligan. All he could have lost was the decision and he might have saved his reputation. Win, lose or draw tonight, he may not be able to do that against Elvic.

This mussy young man has that school girl complexion and the skin you love to touch but the boy simply doesn't bruise easily. You hit him and he ignores the incident entirely. He hits you and the matter seems equally unimportant. Meanwhile, the tangle of hands and elbows proceeds until they call in the sheriff with a search warrant and some one finds out what became of the points scored.

Elvic makes the good ones look bad and the bad ones look worse. Unless Milligan is somewhat better than the writer considers him, he will make a distinct impression on neither Elvic nor the crowd. The chances are good that the cloak and suit men will call him a tramp, whether he wins or loses.

This is to be deplored in view of the fact that no little importance rides with the result. Our Mr. Rickard is imbued with the commendable idea of matching the winner with Joe Dundee and sending the survivor in with the champion at such time as the commission removes the ball and chain.

However, if Milligan fails to shake off Elvic's arms and elbows tonight, Rickard is likely to forget the plan and remember the high cost of users. Just a bad match for Milligan, that's all.

What is likely to please the button hole makers far more is the sensational, involving California Joe Lynch and Bushy Graham, two of the best tautans in the land. Either could probably take Charley Phil Rosenberg for the title but, unfortunately, you have to catch Charles before you take him. It will be Lynch's eastern debut.
